Every man has inside him, her. That which is small and that which is great. Pettiness and magnanimity. Courage and cowardice. Darnedness and passion. Insincerity and sincerity. Walking the path of the Divine. Entering the sacred space of our heart.

We have responsibility to manifest godly qualities. The loftiness of spirit. The nobility. We should rise above small mindedness and above fear. The divine path is not just inner path. It is both. Inner and outer. It is just a path. Or it is the path.

It is the path of the universe. Path of creation. And as we are walking it, so does god is walking it. You need to learn how to see this reality from a higher place, from a universal perspective. Not just from the person within yourself. You need to see life. And life includes you and your evolution and everything else through the eyes of the creator. How he sees everything. How he perceives this existence. What is his intention? So that gradually your intention becomes his intention or his intention becomes your intention. So you will become his instrument. But then again you are yourself.

And you become your own instrument as well. In this retreat we focused on healing of the heart. When you heal your heart, you also heal your mind.

So that all obstacles are removed. Or at least the major obstacles are removed. You become unburdened and free to expand. Healing of the heart is also necessary in order to enter your heart much deeper. To actually, truly awaken your heart.

Not just a little bit as you probably already have. But fully. This is not just a place where you experience gentle love. Compassion. Kindness. True heart. Fully realized. The living fire of love. It burns everything that is untrue. That is not right. That is not in harmony. When you are entering the heart, you are entering a burning oven of God. And when that fire burns everything inside you that is not aligned with the Divine's intention, then that fire can expand and emanate into everything. It will burn this whole universe. And the only thing that it will not burn is that which cannot be burned. Which is truth. Which is itself. Because that living fire of love cannot burn that one thing which is love. So at the end, love is all that remains. Many of you by now should have experienced a great relief in your heart. A sense of freedom.

You have unburdened yourself. Unchained yourself from your past. Unchained all of that in your heart that you have accumulated from your past. Your pain, your negativity. Your confusion. Sadness. Hopelessness. We will continue that process in the next retreat in one month. I do not think that it is a long process, but there is some process involved, certainly. And you should continue that process in the space between now and the next retreat. The process of liberating your own heart.

Observe your heart. Get to know it better. Its emotional dimension. Observe it when you are interacting with people. All the time sensitively feeling what the heart feels. And translating, decoding its language. What it is actually telling you. Where is it hurting now? You have all the tools. You have the power to heal yourself. In this retreat you have received help, certainly.

Great help. But the only way you could be helped is because you could help yourself. No one can be helped that cannot help himself. Thank you. We live in time. When I say we, I am not necessarily talking about Earth, humanity as such, but about me and you. You and me. Because for us time is different now. So we live in time where everything is moving extremely fast. Things are happening exponentially. Sometimes too fast to even register. To catch up with what is actually happening. Because that time is moving so fast.

You need to move fast. You need to be in synchronicity with all these changes. Or else you will be lagging behind in so-called past. You will be experiencing reality in delay. And the more you are in delay, the more difficult will be to catch up. You need to be dynamic. Not lethargic. Not napping. Always awake. Alert. In tune. Because what is happening now for you is a lifetime's opportunity to find it. Breakthrough in your evolution and existence. You have suffered in now. You have suffered so much.

You have suffered for eternity. Now it is your chance to end it. And that's a fact. Examine your heart. Examine your mind. Be truthful and honest. Be pure. Because being pure is actually a choice. Most people cannot choose. They are not in control of their choices. Or very little, but you can choose. You can choose to change.

You can choose to become someone that you have never been. Your very new reincarnation. And now let's meditate a little. Be with your heart. Be with your precious existence.

Be with your heart. We thank the Divine for allowing us to have this retreat. Thank you for being here with us, in our hearts. Be with your heart. We thank Human for honoring us with his presence, for his love and selfless compassion that seems to have no bounds. The fact that we are here and now, in that real here and now, means that everything is as it should be. Finally. At last.
